Paper Numbering: Proceedings of SPIE follow an e-First publication model. A unique citation identifier (CID) number is assigned to each article at the time of publication. Utilization of CIDs allows articles to be fully citable as soon as they are published online, and connects the same identifier to all online and print versions of the publication. SPIE uses a seven-digit CID article numbering system structured as follows:

- The first five digits correspond to the SPIE volume number.
- The last two digits indicate publication order within the volume using a Base 36 numbering system employing both numerals and letters. These two-number sets start with 00, 01, 02, 03, 04, 05, 06, 07, 08, 09, 0A, 0B ... 0Z, followed by 10-1Z, 20-2Z, etc. The CID Number appears on each page of the manuscript.

Introduction

The chairs of Remote Sensing of the Ocean & Sea Ice and Large Water Regions thank the authors of the papers reviewed and accepted for publication in this book. This book as well as the conference held in Warsaw, Poland introduced new authors, including students to new research and applications of many aspects of ocean optics and remote sensing of water. We appreciate the extra effort to submit their papers for consideration to be included in the published proceedings. The published articles in this book represent contributions that will be useful to help improve our knowledge and scientific understanding of remote sensing, physical oceanography, ocean engineering, ocean and coastal optics and ocean sciences in general. In many cases the accepted papers represent significant efforts of our colleagues to document their work and to share their understanding and experience through formal questions and informal discussions at the meeting.

We thank the session chairs for their extra work, participation and assistance with the conducting the meetings. As always special thanks go to the efforts of the SPIE staff for organizing the conference and for their assistance in reviewing and producing this final publication. Without SPIE's dedicated editorial support, this book could not be produced.
