Paper Numbering: Proceedings of SPIE follow an e-First publication model, with papers published first online and then in print and on CD-ROM. Papers are published as they are submitted and meet publication criteria. A unique, consistent, permanent citation identifier (CID) number is assigned to each article at the time of the first publication. Utilization of CIDs allows articles to be fully citable as soon they are published online, and connects the same identifier to all online, print, and electronic versions of the publication. SPIE uses a six-digit CID article numbering system in which:

- The first four digits correspond to the SPIE volume number.
- The last two digits indicate publication order within the volume using a Base 36 numbering system employing both numerals and letters. These two-number sets start with 00, 01, 02, 03, 04, 05, 06, 07, 08, 09, 0A, 0B ... 0Z, followed by 10-1Z, 20-2Z, etc.

The CID number appears on each page of the manuscript. The complete citation is used on the first page, and an abbreviated version on subsequent pages. Numbers in the index correspond to the last two digits of the six-digit CID number.

Introduction

The editors and conference chairs thank the participants who attended the Remote Sensing of the Ocean, Sea Ice, and Large Water Regions 2009 conference in Berlin, Germany. The Berlin conference center was an excellent venue for the conference

The selected authors, and their reviewed papers for presentation and publication in this volume, continue to make important contributions to the open scientific literature in remote sensing of the water surface.

Several technical sub-committee members also presided over the sessions at the conference and we appreciate their time in assisting with the conduct of the conference. Of particular note are the excellent papers regarding ocean optics, water surface imaging and simulation, and benthic airborne sensing and related mapping.

A kind thank you is given to the efforts of the staff at SPIE for following the proceedings throughout the publication process. The conference and resulting publication could not have been held without the SPIE staff within the European and U.S. offices. Thanks again for your patience and support in the coordination of the conference for all of the participants and authors of this volume.
